Carpe Diem

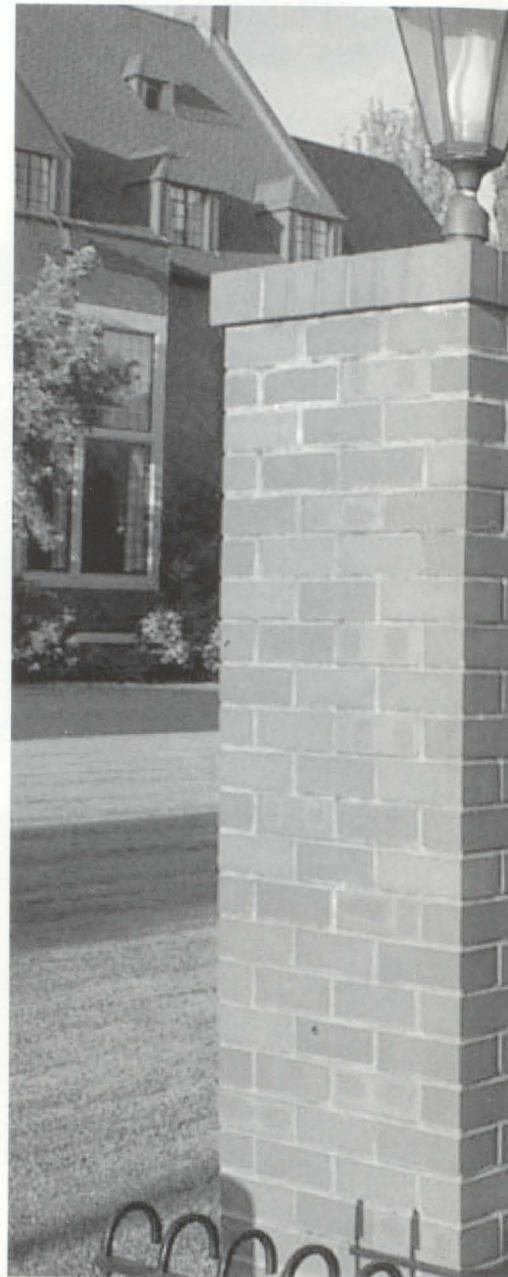

Seize the Day

The academic year of 2001-2002 proved to be one of fresh opportunities: new students, new staff and our innovative new Head of School, Dr. Stan Cummings, with his spirited wife Sigrid. This year, we embraced our challenges and prepared ourselves for anything.

Throughout the years the Annie Wright Community has followed the philosophy of "carpe diem." The same attitude is exemplified in our enduring school motto, "From Strength to Strength." It inspires us to reach for our inner strength. It reminds us of the confidence we need to take risks and deal with the effects of our actions. We, at Annie Wright, demonstrate our abilities to be stronger than our challenges, to remain open to all possibilities and to strive to make the world a better place.

This yearbook is dedicated to our new Head of School, Dr. Stan Cummings, for helping us to "seize the day."

TUDENT LIFE IS NOT ONLY SUCCEEDING IN ACADEMICS AND SPORTS, BUT IN LIFE. ALTHOUGH THE DEFINITION OF SUCCESS IN A STUDENT'S LIFE IS AS UNIQUE AS THE PERSON, OUR DESIRES ARE MUCH THE SAME. WE ALL WISH TO BE HAPPY, BUT TO FIND THIS HAPPINESS WE MUST SEEK OUT OUR OWN PATH. THIS MAY BE LIVING IN THE PRESENT OR TAKING TIME TO UNDERSTAND THE SECRETS OF THE WORLD. LIFE HANDS US ENDLESS OPPORTUNITIES. IDEALLY EVERY STUDENT SHOULD PROUDLY SAY, "TODAY, I SEIZED THE DAY."

TASTE LIFE

Free Time

Tick Tock... Tick Tock...

The academic work keeps everyone on their toes, though there is much more than just hitting the books when it comes to our school. During free time students might head out for white chocolate mochas in the Stadium district or down to the Ruston Way waterfront. If it's a rainy day, everyone can head down to the Student Lounge for microwave popcorn and a crazy movie. With sports games in the afternoons, students often go out with signs and pompoms to root for their home team. This community may appear to run ninety miles an hour, but when there's free time, they know how to take a breather.

90% of success is showing up

Back to School

A beautiful sunny day signified the end of summer and the beginning of another academic year. The lower schoolers ran about happily, the middle schoolers lounged by the arches in the cloister, and the upper schoolers sun-bathed on the front lawn. But the next day it was back to the books. Both students and teachers felt a sense of excitement at the prospect of another year. It would be another chance to excel and grow, another chance to "Seize the Day!" Two weeks later we celebrated our start of the year with the Back-to-School Picnic. Parents brought homemade treats, which the dormers happily devoured. Annie Wrighters got to taste that last bit of summer while catching up, meeting new people and contemplating the upcoming year.

Orientation

Upper School orientation this year provided students with an opportunity to “start healthy and stay healthy.” Students had a chance to implement their goals for healthy living by participating in workshops like ice-skating, yoga, and skin care at the Sprinker Center as well as weight-training and kick-boxing at the Norpoint Center. Sue Thomas, a hearing-impaired woman who taught herself how to speak, explained the importance of setting goals and endeavoring to reach them.

The Middle School had a similarly energetic experience for orientation. At Camp Arnold, they rock-climbed, canoed and played games. The middle schoolers even had to hunt for their meals in a strange practice called “jungle breakfast.” Overall, orientation was a great blend of effort and entertainment.

Annie Wright Unites

At Annie Wright, we gathered together to remember the lives lost and support one another in this time of trial and tribulation. We, the members of the AWS community, came together in a special chapel ceremony. Teachers and students shared their thoughts and feelings about the tragedies and then united in song for the singing of "America the Beautiful" and "Let There Be Peace on Earth." Throughout the days of confusion, the teachers worked hard to keep the students informed with facts about the unfolding events.

2001 September 11

No one could foresee the devastating events that occurred on September 11, 2001. First, terrorists hijacked American Airlines flight 11, and at 8:48 AM the airplane crashed into Tower 1 of the World Trade Center in New York City. Second, at 9:06 AM, United Airlines flight 175 flew into the second of the Twin Towers. Third, less than hour later, American Airlines flight 77 smashed into a side of the Pentagon in Washington D.C. By 10:30 AM both towers of the World Trade Center had collapsed. Later that same morning, Delta flight 93 crashed into an empty field in Pennsylvania. We now know that the plane had been hijacked as well. However, this time the terrorists did not fully succeed. The passengers learned about the day's events after making contact with their friends and families on the ground. They decided to do something about their situation. "They seized the day." Those passengers were able to stop the hijackers from hitting their intended target. They unselfishly gave their lives in order to prevent another large-scale disaster. The courage they displayed during this time inspires us. It reminds us that we, as Americans, must not be afraid. We will never forget their bravery nor that of the police and firefighters of New York City, many of whom lost their lives. We as everyday citizens have the power to protect and defend our country. Through these events all can see the opportunity to work together, from strength to strength, in order to improve understanding among nations and make the world a more accepting place. These pages are in memory of those affected by the events of September 11th.

Fun Times in the Dorm!

Who spends weekends and vacations at school? These are not girls who show up on Saturdays due to a lack of life... they are here for life -- dorm life! Communal clothes, communal groceries... it's a place of sharing. Although you may not know exactly who has your tape or shirt, you know you will eventually get it back. Occasionally you will even be awakened at 2 am, but there is always a good reason. After all, it's family.

Holidays at the Hedge

Holidays are an important aspect of Annie Wright, embedded in our tradition. The junior class organizes the Halloween Carnival every year, with the assistance of the rest of the Upper School. They start planning the minute school starts, and the preparations continue into the morning of the carnival, which has a haunted house, booths, games, and other ghoulish antics. It's a great way to connect the young and old students of Annie Wright. Yet, there is a tradition that surpasses that of the Halloween Carnival: Lessons & Carols. On this occasion, Bishop Warner offers many insightful lessons to the congregation that includes faculty, students, their families, and alumni. The chorus, assembly, and soloists sing beautiful carols accompanied by the orchestra.

“Wright” in the Spotlight!

Drama

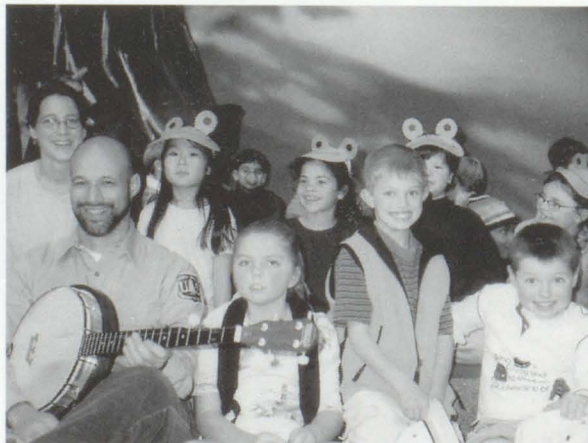

This year we had a fantastic drama program. It all began with the “Autumn Montage,” four short one-act plays performed by upper school students. One was even written by our very own drama director, Mr. Self! Next, a thrilling murder mystery saga at an all-girls school took to the stage in the winter production of “Murder Takes the Veil.” The cast included many grade levels and brave faculty members. “Ghost Mystery,” a middle school performance, is set for the spring. The lower school plays were also great to watch this year! Director Michael Self, Drama Tech Director Judy Buennagel, and their dedicated teams of assistants, including Lexi Rado, put in long hours behind the scenes of these plays to make the sets, lighting, and sound just “Wright.”

CADEMICS IS ONE OF THE ESSENTIAL PURSUITS OF ANNIE WRIGHT. EACH OF THE THREE SCHOOLS FOCUSES ON EXCELLING IN EDUCATION: THE LOWER SCHOOL INTRODUCES THE BASICS, THE MIDDLE SCHOOL BUILDS ON THAT FIRM FOUNDATION, AND THE UPPER SCHOOL DEVELOPS MORE PROFOUND UNDERSTANDING THROUGH IN-DEPTH STUDY. EQUIPPED WITH THE WILL AND THE WAYS TO MOTIVATE OUR MINDS. THE AWS FACULTY ENCOURAGE STUDENTS TO "SEIZE THE DAY" IN THEIR OWN INTELLECTUAL PURSUITS.

Math and Science

pi...i... 2+2

Mathematics is the heart of business and the language of science. We all love math because in most cases there is only one possible answer. Of course, that's also why we sometimes hate it. From single-digit addition to parabolas, all ages of Annie Wright students get to experience their share of this most logical of school subjects. As math is the language for science, science is the understanding of the natural world. All around the school, Annie Wrighters are learning while experimenting about many facets of science. In the Lower School, students learn about the different phases of matter. Middle schoolers take their exploration one step further by studying science at the molecular level. In the Upper School, students experiment in more complex areas of science like human anatomy and physiology, physics, biology and chemistry. Equipped with the understanding of science and math, Annie Wright students will soon graduate and be able to rule the world!

Language

beauty of words

The study of language is an integral part of education. In lower school, aspiring students learn the basics of both English and Japanese. This diverse linguistic base continues into middle school, where students study French, Spanish, and Latin in addition to literature and writing classes. In the Upper School, girls participate in a broad range of English-based classes including literature, writing, and English as a Second Language. In addition, many choose to participate in foreign languages including French, Spanish, and Japanese.

Social Studies

Mercantilism...maps

Social studies is a very essential area of study because its purpose is to teach us about the past so that we can make wiser decisions for the future. We also learn about various cultures so that we may better accept and understand those who are different than us. Annie Wright elementary and middle school students learn about how important events have impacted people both locally and globally. In the Upper School, the curriculum focuses on teaching girls about history as well as current events, geography and economics. In U.S. History, students learn about the significant concept of "mercantilism," which is loosely defined as "mother countries benefiting from their colonies." Mercantilism is practiced even at Annie Wright, where we are the colonies taught and supported by our teachers, or "mother countries." After we have grown up, we will make wise decisions as world leaders and our teachers will profit from their investments in teaching us.

Arts

2-D to 3-D

Annie Wright's art program stretches from pre-kindergarden all the way to the twelfth grade. Students begin on the most basic level with finger painting, sponge painting, and conceptual design and work their way up over the years, taking advantage of the school's vast array of supplies and resources. After learning two-point perspective, the art of collage, acrylic and watercolor painting, pottery and ceramics, they are then allowed to explore their own styles. The program allows for both artistic freedom and structure, letting children and young adults explore their creative side in a pictorial fashion.

Physical Education

run to the line

Becoming a PE All-star is a great honor in the Lower School. Every child remembers hearing their name and walking down the aisle with a proud grin. Each is a star, a winner! PE remains a vivid memory because of events like these. It is a time that one can be a star, and not just any star, but an athletic star. PE, with Emil Verbovski, Rondi Adair, and Patty Nielson makes every kid feel like a winner. It teaches teamwork. It shows that students can be leaders. It gives them the confidence and perseverance to achieve their goals. Later in their Annie Wright careers, they depend on these traits learned at a young age to get them through the next stage. As they run the mile around the track at Garfield Park, they remember the day that they became stars and sprint towards the finish line.

Homines People

PEOPLE ARE UNIQUE; EVERYONE KNOWS THAT NO TWO ARE THE SAME. THE FOLLOWING PAGES ARE FILLED WITH PICTURES OF PEOPLE, THEIR MUGS AND THEIR MEMORIES. ALTHOUGH HERE THEY ARE GROUPED INTO CLASSES AND CANDIDS, REMEMBER THAT THEY ARE INDIVIDUALS WITH THEIR OWN BELIEFS, DESIRES AND HISTORIES. THE BEST FEATURE OF PEOPLE IS THAT THEY ARE NOT MONOTONOUSLY THE SAME. THEIR ONLY TRUE COMMONALITY IS THAT THEY ARE DIFFERENT. NEXT TIME YOU SEE YOUR OWN MUG, SAY, "THERE ARE SO MANY PEOPLE IN THE WORLD, BUT JUST ONE OF ME. LET ME 'SEIZE THE DAY' IN MY OWN SPECIAL WAY."

- Novelty Sarah :)

Sarah- Sarah! Thank you for all the wonderful meetings, late night parties, shopping trips, and dress up. -Scooter Girl

Girls- Words hardly seem necessary nor sufficient. I love every quirk revealed over the years through joys and pains. Anything you want you got it. Anything you need you got it. Anything at all, you got it, Baby...

Jessica- You could have killed me with coffee, but thank you for all the late night chats and espresso that kept me up for hours.

Michelle- All those fun adventures chilling in coffee shops and finding random buildings while gracefully getting lost. Love!

Allison- Crazy times! We embraced insanity together and frank talks that could scandalize the masses.

To the exposé! I love you!

Stacia & Ira- My crazy green ties! You always managed to make me smile.

Red ties- Apples forever! I can't wait to see where we will all be ten years from now.

Ji-sun- I bet you thought I forgot you, but that is not possible. Love you!

My proctees & exproctees- you are all so special. Sharing your smiles and your tears brightened up my life. Love you gals.

Melissa & Lisa~ So many good times. We'll make some more when I come home. Yippee Skippy!

My Red Ties- It's been quite the time, and we've still got a long way to go. Cherish everything. Keep in touch. We'll meet again. (Sooner is better than later.)

My twinkling stars- I miss you, but as long as I remember, I know you will always be here.

Allison- Don't ever forget.

Beth~ I will walk with you 'till the sun don't even shine. My girl for always.

Lee, my brother, May the force be with you!

Anne~ Hab' dich lieb.

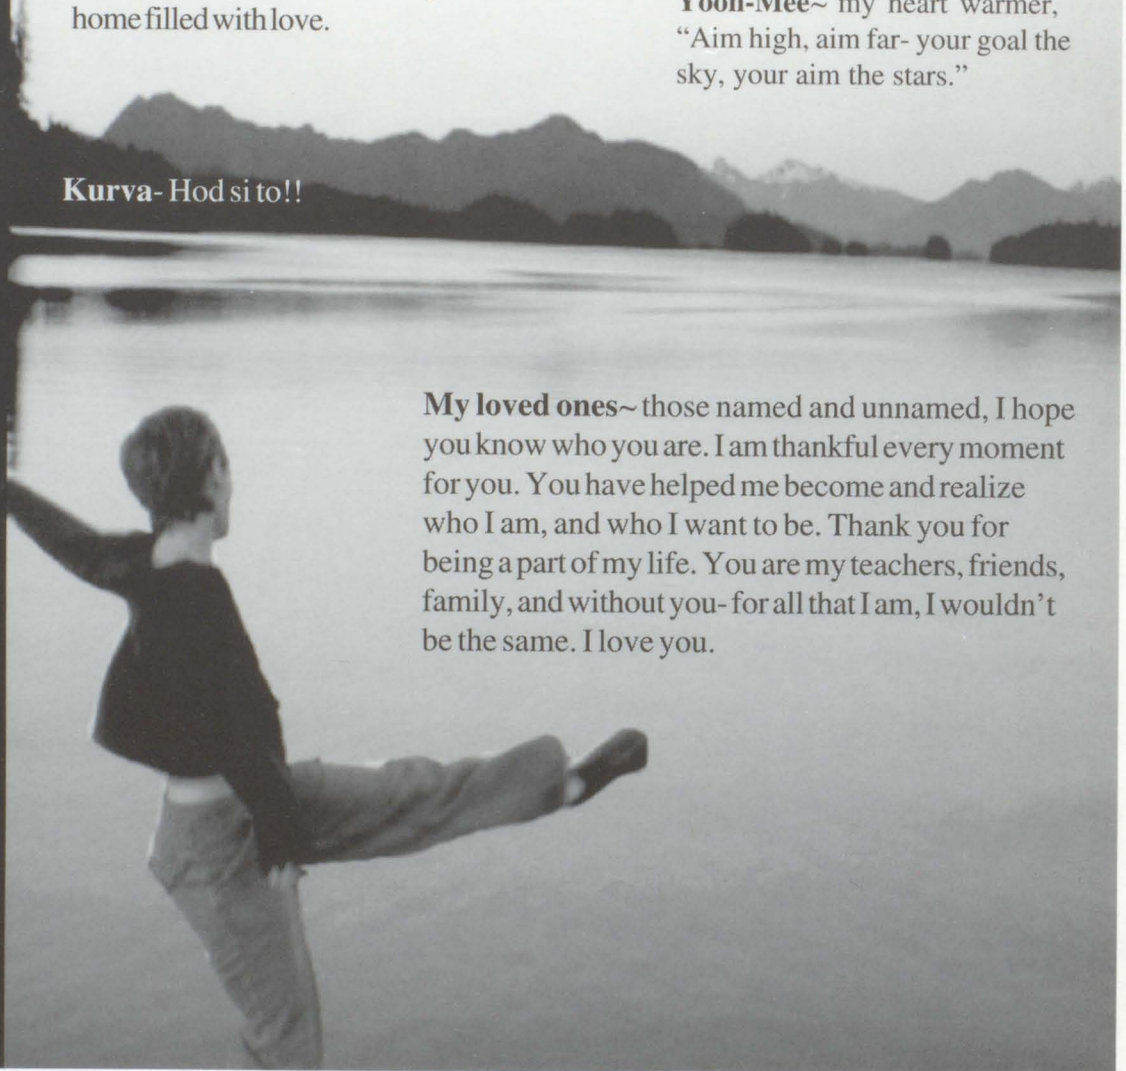

Mom and Dad, you mean so much to me. Thank you for letting me go, so I could find myself, and thank you for a home filled with love.

Lexi- "For what its worth, it was worth all the while."

Yoon-Mee~ my heart warmer, "Aim high, aim far- your goal the sky, your aim the stars."

Kurva- Hod si to!!

My loved ones~ those named and unnamed, I hope you know who you are. I am thankful every moment for you. You have helped me become and realize who I am, and who I want to be. Thank you for being a part of my life. You are my teachers, friends, family, and without you- for all that I am, I wouldn't be the same. I love you.

To my Barbie girls and my green ties: You've been the best of friends, you've made high school bearable, and given me all the good memories I could ever ask for. I love you guys!!! GW forever (and Lestat, of course)

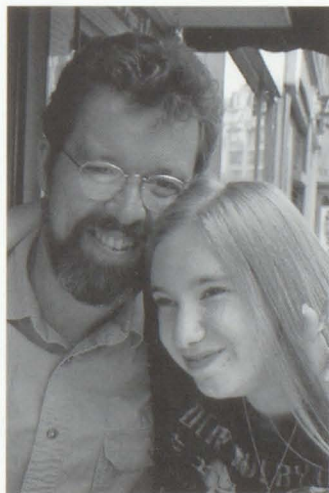

To my darling Eve/Orian/Adrian: You've been my strength and my happiness, you've carried me through everything, thank you for being my best friend, now and forever. Jasper, Baba, and Trimble all send out their hearts to you!

To Jasper, Adrian, Orian, Baba, Trimble, Marcie, Luc, Alaster, Gabriel, Scott, Davis, Marc, Ellie, and all the other little voices in my head: Thank you for distracting me (permanently) and helping me forget all my problems (and thanks to all my obsessions too!).

To my parents: Thank you for your everlasting support and love, I never would have made it without you. Thank you for not only giving me wings, but also for teaching me to fly.

Mommy: I can tell you anything and you would understand. I love you so much and thanks for being wonderful.

Daddy: You have always been there to help me face life's challenges. You have taught me not to become impatient and fearful if the future does not unfold in a clear and timely manner. Daddy, you honestly are my best friend and I am proud to be your daughter.

Sissys: Even though we have our moments of pretend hatred, loving you guys has never ceased. My beautiful sisters, I'm glad to be your baby sis.

Ashley: Never have I found a friend as devoted and loving as you. You are the best friend I ever had, and I hope never to lose you. We have had some good times together! Love you dearly Ashley and miss you!

Looks forward to each day as a new beginning.
Knows her abilities and respects the value of others;
Is responsible at home and at work;
Graciously encourages others to assist, and learn;
Finds fulfillment in giving, and joy in receiving;
Is ever grateful for the love of family and friends;
Takes care of herself in mind and body;
Has faith and believes in herself.

A Class...

Meet the senior class of 2002! Go Apples! With thirty-three young women, this is one of the largest graduating classes in Annie Wright history. Therefore, one would assume that with so many people it would be all too easy to find one little spade...

The spade is a highly revered object at Annie Wright School, especially in the eyes of seniors. The previous senior class hides the spade (some part of it must be touching the AWS building) and gives a clue to the new senior class at the Upper School Picnic.

A Clue...

“Está en la oscuridad.”

Class of 2001 alumni Anna Mumford and Virginia Philbrook gave this year's clue, which, when translated from Spanish to English, means: “It's in the dark.” After eating ceremonial cake commemorating the 118th “birthday” of Annie Wright, seniors were dismissed to search school premises for the hidden object. They knew they had until October 31st to find it, or they would lose their red ties and acquire the infamous black ties.

“We'll find it today!” many of them thought, though really...

& Finding the Spade!

The search did not end until Thursday, October 11, when three seniors came screaming through the halls: "We found it!" Where was it? It was in a place that several seniors had previously searched and dismissed: above the ceiling tiles in the chapel bathroom.

Below: Seniors know that the second they find the spade they must tell their class president, Beth Shaffer, who will inform their class advisor, Mrs. Soucey.

And so, the spade reappeared, thanks to the class and the clue, and was adorned with a brand new red tie (much more decorative than a black tie might have been).

Then, as a result of finding the spade, the journey of getting senior privileges and equitable responsibilities began...

Allison Faye Marier

Coming to Annie Wright is the best thing that I have done thus far. I have grown as a person tremendously (of course, don't forget that I packed on the freshmen fifteen three years early), and I have done things that I still cannot believe that I have done, yet will remain close to me. Who could forget the WTO protests? Who could forget a whirlwind tour through Europe? Who would think that being a freshmen proctor would be fun? What I'm trying to say is that I've discovered that it matters less and less what you look like every day. What you will remember in ten years isn't going to be how awful the uniform was - you will remember what you did with or for other people.

To my friends: I love you all very much and I'll miss you next year when we all go our separate ways. Even though we will be far apart, we will always be together in our hearts.

Lindsey: You've been there for me for as long as I can remember. Thank you so much for making me laugh these past years.

To my parents: Well, I've finally done it. I'm on my way home to become a part of the world, and I couldn't have done it without your support. Thank you for pushing me to do what I didn't think I could.

To Nick and Jessica: Thanks for not letting me get too bored. You've kept my life interesting since I was little, and I hope you'll continue to do so long after we've grown up.

Mom and Dad- Thank you for giving me so many opportunities in life. I love you.

Torie- Wherever I am next year, I will miss you. Who will I bicker with? I love you!

Sam- I have missed you this year. Don't forget about your little sisters. Love you bro!

Cody- You are a true friend and I hope we will always be close. Thanks for always being there through all the laughs and tears. Love you!

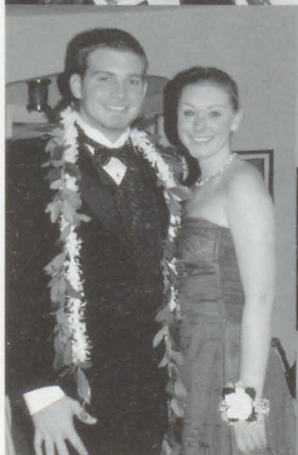

Laura- I am so glad that we got to know each other all over again these past three years. We've had some good times that I will never forget. Luv ya hun!

Taylor- You are such a fun girl. Diet Coke girls for life! Love ya girlie!

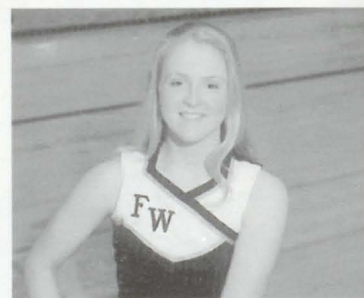

Cammy- Costco baby! Oh yeah! Never change Doll Face, you know I love ya.

Carly- Never forget the good times in the play house. We should be engineers. Luv ya!

Max

What can I say, I love you. I have missed our Sundays together jumping on Baba and Zade's bed and watching the "I Love My Flobee" infomercial. Remember Seagull Island? Lacrosse Rules!!

Laura & Cameron

I love you guys like brothers. LAURA, What am I going to do without you next year? There is going to be complete withdrawal when we don't have each other to sit next to in every class. We are going to have massive phone bills just from telling each other about the hot guy we saw that day. Live every moment in college to the fullest. I will miss you, and I love you. CAMMY, We have had some crazy, awesome times together. Whistler was definitely the craziest, snowboarding was so much fun. How about following cute jeep boy to the movie theater? HA! I know you will be having crazy fun 20 years from now. I love you to death girl, party on!

Mommy & Daddy

I do not know where to start. Thank you for giving me everything and so much more. You have taught me the most significant lesson in life: love. Thank you for moving me out of my comfort zone and opening my eyes to new experiences. I could say thank you a billion times, but it would still not be enough. I love you.

Baba & Zade

First of all I have missed you both the past six years. It has been hard not having you seven blocks away. Thank you for everything you have given me. I miss our weekends together going to Bronco and Buffalo football games, hanging out, watching golf, and going out to dinner on Sunday nights. I am so lucky to have you both; I love you!

Red Apples

Class of 2002! Where do I start with y'all? Each and every one of you has taught me something during my time at Annie Wright. We are all so different, yet we are all the same. I will never forget our camping trips, the Purple Haze, our class meetings, or our laughter. Live your lives to the fullest and never forget we are "Red Apples, A-P-P-L-E-S!!!"

My Tennis Chicas

We have had three great years together. Our practices and bus rides have been so much fun. Our matches have been nothing but wins. Rock On!

Thank you, thank you, thank you...

Thank you to the amazing student body of this year for allowing me to be your ASE President, as well as to the faculty and staff for their support. I hope this year will always mean something special to you, considering Student Council has worked ambitiously to make your dreams realities.

Thank you to my parents who make me laugh and always know just what to say when things seem overwhelming. I could not have asked for better role models, because you have taught me the meaning of commitment, responsibility, trust, compassion, and love — even if my room is never clean... sorry. I love you so much and I will always love being your little girl.

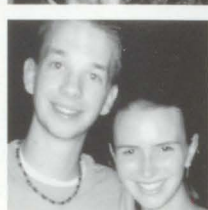

Thank you to my little bro, Nater-Tater, for late night talks and just being the goof you are. I'm glad you are so happy in debate where you really shine — I wish you the best in all of your high school career: you are going places. I love you lots!

Thank you to my church wisdom, and prayers family for your love, through everything.

Thank you to Mr. opportunity to play

Dionne for the great my heart out at SHS.

Thank you to my amazing class, the 2002 Apples. We have changed so much from freshman year to now and I am so proud to be a part of this talented group. Thank you so much for providing shoulders to cry on, smiles and laughter to brighten the days, and stories of inspiration to encourage us always. I hope to see you all as alumni and I am grateful for the bond we share. Thank you to all of my friends throughout the years, Apples or otherwise. I love you all and I will miss you!

Thank you to everyone who has aided me along this journey — it has been one I will never forget.

"That's what real love amounts to- letting a person be what he really is. Most people love you for who you pretend to be. To keep their love, you keep pretending- performing. You get to love your pretence. It's true, we're locked in an image, an act- and the sad thing is, people get so used to their image, they grow attached to their masks. They love their chains. They forget all about who they really are. And if you try to remind them, they hate you for it, they feel like you're trying to steal their most precious possession."

Student Council & Class Officers

Student Council is the behind-the-scenes activity that is responsible for keeping the student body smiling. The ten-member Upper School Student Council has introduced discussion about the Pledge of Allegiance, arranged celebrations of holidays (like Halloween and Valentines Day), scrubbed and rearranged the Student Lounge numerous times, and worked to put together large-scale events, like "Battle of the Bands." All in all these leadership teams do a phenomenal job planning, organizing, and executing their ideas into realities to make this school a better place.

Honor and Excellence

Honor Board, National Honor Society, & Raynor Guild

Annie Wright has many clubs in service to it. National Honor Society is a group of dedicated students who demonstrate excellence in academics and their extracurricular activities. These students are united in their service to the school in student council, clubs, and the community. These are the students the school consults if they need assistance organizing orientation and other school-sponsored activities. Six students make up Honor Board, which represents the faculty and the student body. They not only teach the honor code; they also implement it. Raynor Guild serves the school by caring for the chapel, a long-standing tradition at Annie Wright. They work to ensure it will remain so in the future. While each of these organizations is unique in its purpose, they all have a common bond—honor and excellence.

TASC, SADD & Unity through Diversity

Clubs in the Upper School all have their distinct ways of contributing. TASC, Tacoma Area Service Committee, organizes trips to the soup kitchens, nursing homes, clothing drives, and fundraising dances to help not only Tacoma, but also the world. SADD, Students Against Destructive Decisions, discusses issues pertinent to teens and participates in marches and walks to share their opinions. Unity through Diversity unites students in their differences. They organize Diversity Week to enlighten students on the many differences within our school. Each of these clubs serves in a special way and changes the world in the process.

Yearbook is a club that pushes its members to their limits. While some may think the yearbook meets twice a week, they find themselves quite mistaken when they see a member traipsing in early Saturday morning to finish another page. The members learn many skills like desktop publishing, copy-editing, photography, and journalism. As those picture-perfect moments are formed around the school, yearbook is quickly recording them for memories to be treasured for a life time.

their creative writing skills. According to president Annie Greene, "I think that the best part about Literary Arts is that we get a chance to share our work with others and see work from people that we do not normally get to read." Inkwell produces a bi-monthly newspaper discussing current events, community events, and world issues. A lot of hard work goes into composing and editing, in order to produce a polished final product.

The Wave of the Future

TSA, FBLA, Photography

There are many national organizations at Annie Wright. TSA, the Technology Students Association, teaches students about technology, allowing them to develop and acquire skills in this burgeoning field. FBLA, Future Business Leaders of America, teaches students about the free enterprise system, economics, and the stock market. But not all focus on building the future; some like the Photography club, focus on recording the present. After all, a picture is worth a thousand words.

The World Unites

International Club, Model UN, Anime Club

Annie Wright School has a rich amount of international culture within the school. Anime is a brand new club this year that allows its members not only to enjoy watching Japanese animation, but also to study the techniques and culture surrounding it. The group plans to begin designing their own mangas (Japanese comics) and artwork. Model UN is designed to raise awareness among AWS students about different political and cultural perspectives of countries around the world. They research and debate current issues that the United Nations is addressing. The club hopes to interact with other schools on a competitive level. The International Club focuses on learning about various cultures represented within Annie Wright and in the greater global community. The club organizes many events including the International Festival, International Talent Show, International Week, and other opportunities for members of the Annie Wright community to discover the great ethnic diversity of our student body.

Taking Advantage of the Stage

Masque Players & Theatre Tech

Annie Wright is full of groups that either seize the stage or make it possible for others to do so while remaining out of sight. The Masque Players participate in improvisation games, perform monologues, and put on chapel presentations. In October, they performed a very entertaining skit about the origin of the jack-o-lantern. Theatre Tech builds and strikes sets, pulls costumes, and runs the show's effects. Each member gets to work in the hidden parts of the theatre, such as the lighting booth, costume loft, and even above the ceiling.

Intellectual Challenges

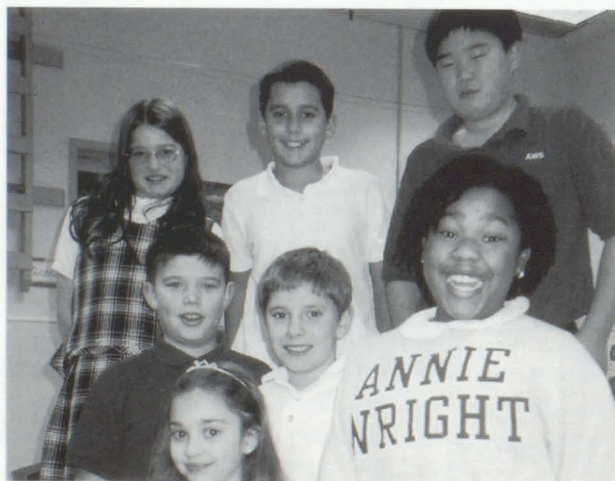

Destination Imagination and Knowledge Bowl

All clubs develop their members mental abilities, but few do so with the intensity of Destination Imagination and Knowledge Bowl. These clubs test students' knowledge during problem solving competitions or games like Jeopardy. Knowledge Bowl travels around the Puget Sound area matching wits against other schools. It's limited to the Upper School, but Destination Imagination includes teams from all three schools. They put on plays which demonstrate their creativity and prove their skills at problem solving.

Ludi Sports

SPORTS HAVE NOT PLAYED A CENTRAL ROLE IN ANNIE WRIGHT. YET OVER THE YEARS THE TEAMS HAVE BECOME AGGRESSIVE, SEIZING DIVISION TITLES AT NOT ONLY DISTRICTS BUT ALSO STATE. THE TEAMS DID NOT ONLY REACH PHYSICAL GOALS, BUT FOSTERED ANNIE WRIGHT'S GOAL OF COOPERATION. INDIVIDUALS WORKED OUTSIDE OF SCHOOL, MEETING PHYSICAL, MENTAL, SPIRITUAL, AND EMOTIONAL CHALLENGES HEAD ON. WHETHER ON A SUNDAY AT THE GOLF COURSE OR ON A DUST-BEATEN TRACK, ANNIE WRIGHTERS ACHIEVE AND SUCCEED.

Volleyball

Bump! Set! Spike!

The volleyball season was overall a successful one. Both JV and Varsity advanced in their skills in practice and applied them on the court during games. The individual skills of the players were outstanding. The time and energy that both teams spent preparing for the season in the summer and during practice in the fall paid off. The support from the faculty, parents, and students was wonderful. The teams played their hearts out, and it was clear that the players all love the game.

Soccer

Every fall students in the Upper and Middle schools brave the elements to come out everyday and kick the ball around for their teams. Although Annie Wright teams may not have the best record, they have gained quite a reputation for being one of the toughest, most aggressive teams in the league. They refuse to take any losses lying down. The Upper School and Middle School support each other on the field. Rain or shine, cold or hot, you're bound to find some Annie Wright Gators playing soccer.

Crossing the Finish Line

Cross Country and Track

The Upper School Cross Country Team had an awesome season, which included several outstanding individual performances. This year, the team participated in the Stanford Invitational, where they placed fourth. They placed first at regionals, second in the district, and fourth in the state. Kirsten Lind was both the league and the district champion. Micki Oda-Burns was right behind, coming in second in the league. Casey Leo, Sarah Furman, and Brittini Peterson were also members of the all-league team. With four new runners and three new coaches supporting the team, next season should be even more exciting.

Nothin' But Net

Middle School Basketball

The four middle school teams began the year with high goals. They wanted to improve, and to win as many games as possible. They put in many hours of practice to get better this year. That hard work, along with their love of the game, really payed off in the end. Congratulations Gators, you gave us a lot to cheer about this season!

Gator Hoops

Upper School Varsity

The Upper School basketball teams played with fire and spunk this season. They operated under a new format in which the JV and Varsity teams practiced together. Entering the newly formed, and highly competitive, Emerald City League, they battled with a number of familiar foes as well as a few new ones. Though the Varsity's final record will show more losses than wins, there were still a number of very exciting, close games. In the end, this turned into a remarkably fun season. We are very optimistic about our chances with next year's squad.

"Preppy" Sports

Tennis and Golf

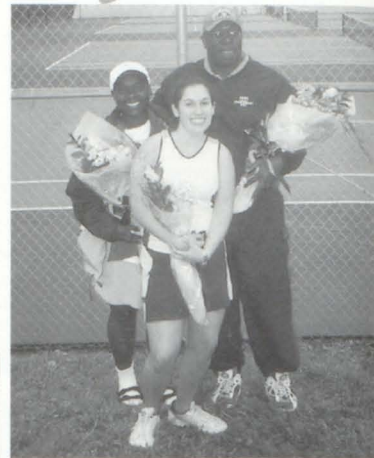

Tennis is a very popular sport here at Annie Wright. With more than 26 girls on the two teams and many returning players, Coach Rhondi Adair expects another successful season. The team is inspired by the outstanding play of junior Taryn Anderson. Currently, Taryn is ranked 13th in the nation in doubles and 201st in singles, and 4th in singles in the Pacific Northwest. We look forward to her winning another state title this season!

Three years ago, Annie Wright alumna Peggy Lou Roberts funded the first AWS upper school golf team. Since its first year, the sport has come from learning the basics of golf to becoming a successful, competitive team.

Go Gators!

The Gators have come a long way over the years. They've improved as a team from first grade to twelfth grade. Each year the students grow as athletes and the faculty grow as mentors. Occasionally they take the role as competitors while the rest of the school rises to cheer on their classmates and faculty. Annie Wright can look forward to many exciting sports seasons in the future!

"The Shield of the Seminary is very familiar to the girls of Annie Wright, but perhaps the significance of the symbols upon that Shield are not so well known to them. We feel that these symbols apply to all phases of school life represented in the yearbook, the book corresponding to classes, the sword and the stars to activities, and the mortar board to the Seniors."

"I wanted a perfect ending. Now I've learned, the hard way, that some poems don't rhyme, and some stories don't have a clear beginning, middle, and end. Life is about not knowing, having to change, taking the moment and making the best of it, without knowing what's going to happen next. Delicious Ambiguity."

Carpe Diem

The school year comes to a close, but this is not the end of opportunity. There are still many doors to open and mountains to climb. Wherever the future takes us, we are Annies, moving from strength to strength.

A word from our Head of School:

I first addressed the Red Tie Class of 2002 at the opening of school. I told Ms. Bauska then that Annie Wright was not some "namby-bamby" private school, but a sailing vessel, and I was the Captain. I looked out at all of you and saw a good crew – some greenhands perhaps, but with hard work, sweat, and discipline, I knew you would make a fine bunch of sailors.

You have not disappointed me. Your energy and enthusiasm have carried our mighty ship through all kinds of weather. I have stood at the rail and watched you in the rigging or taking your turn at the wheel working as a team, watching out for one another and making light work of the toughest chore when all hands pitched in.

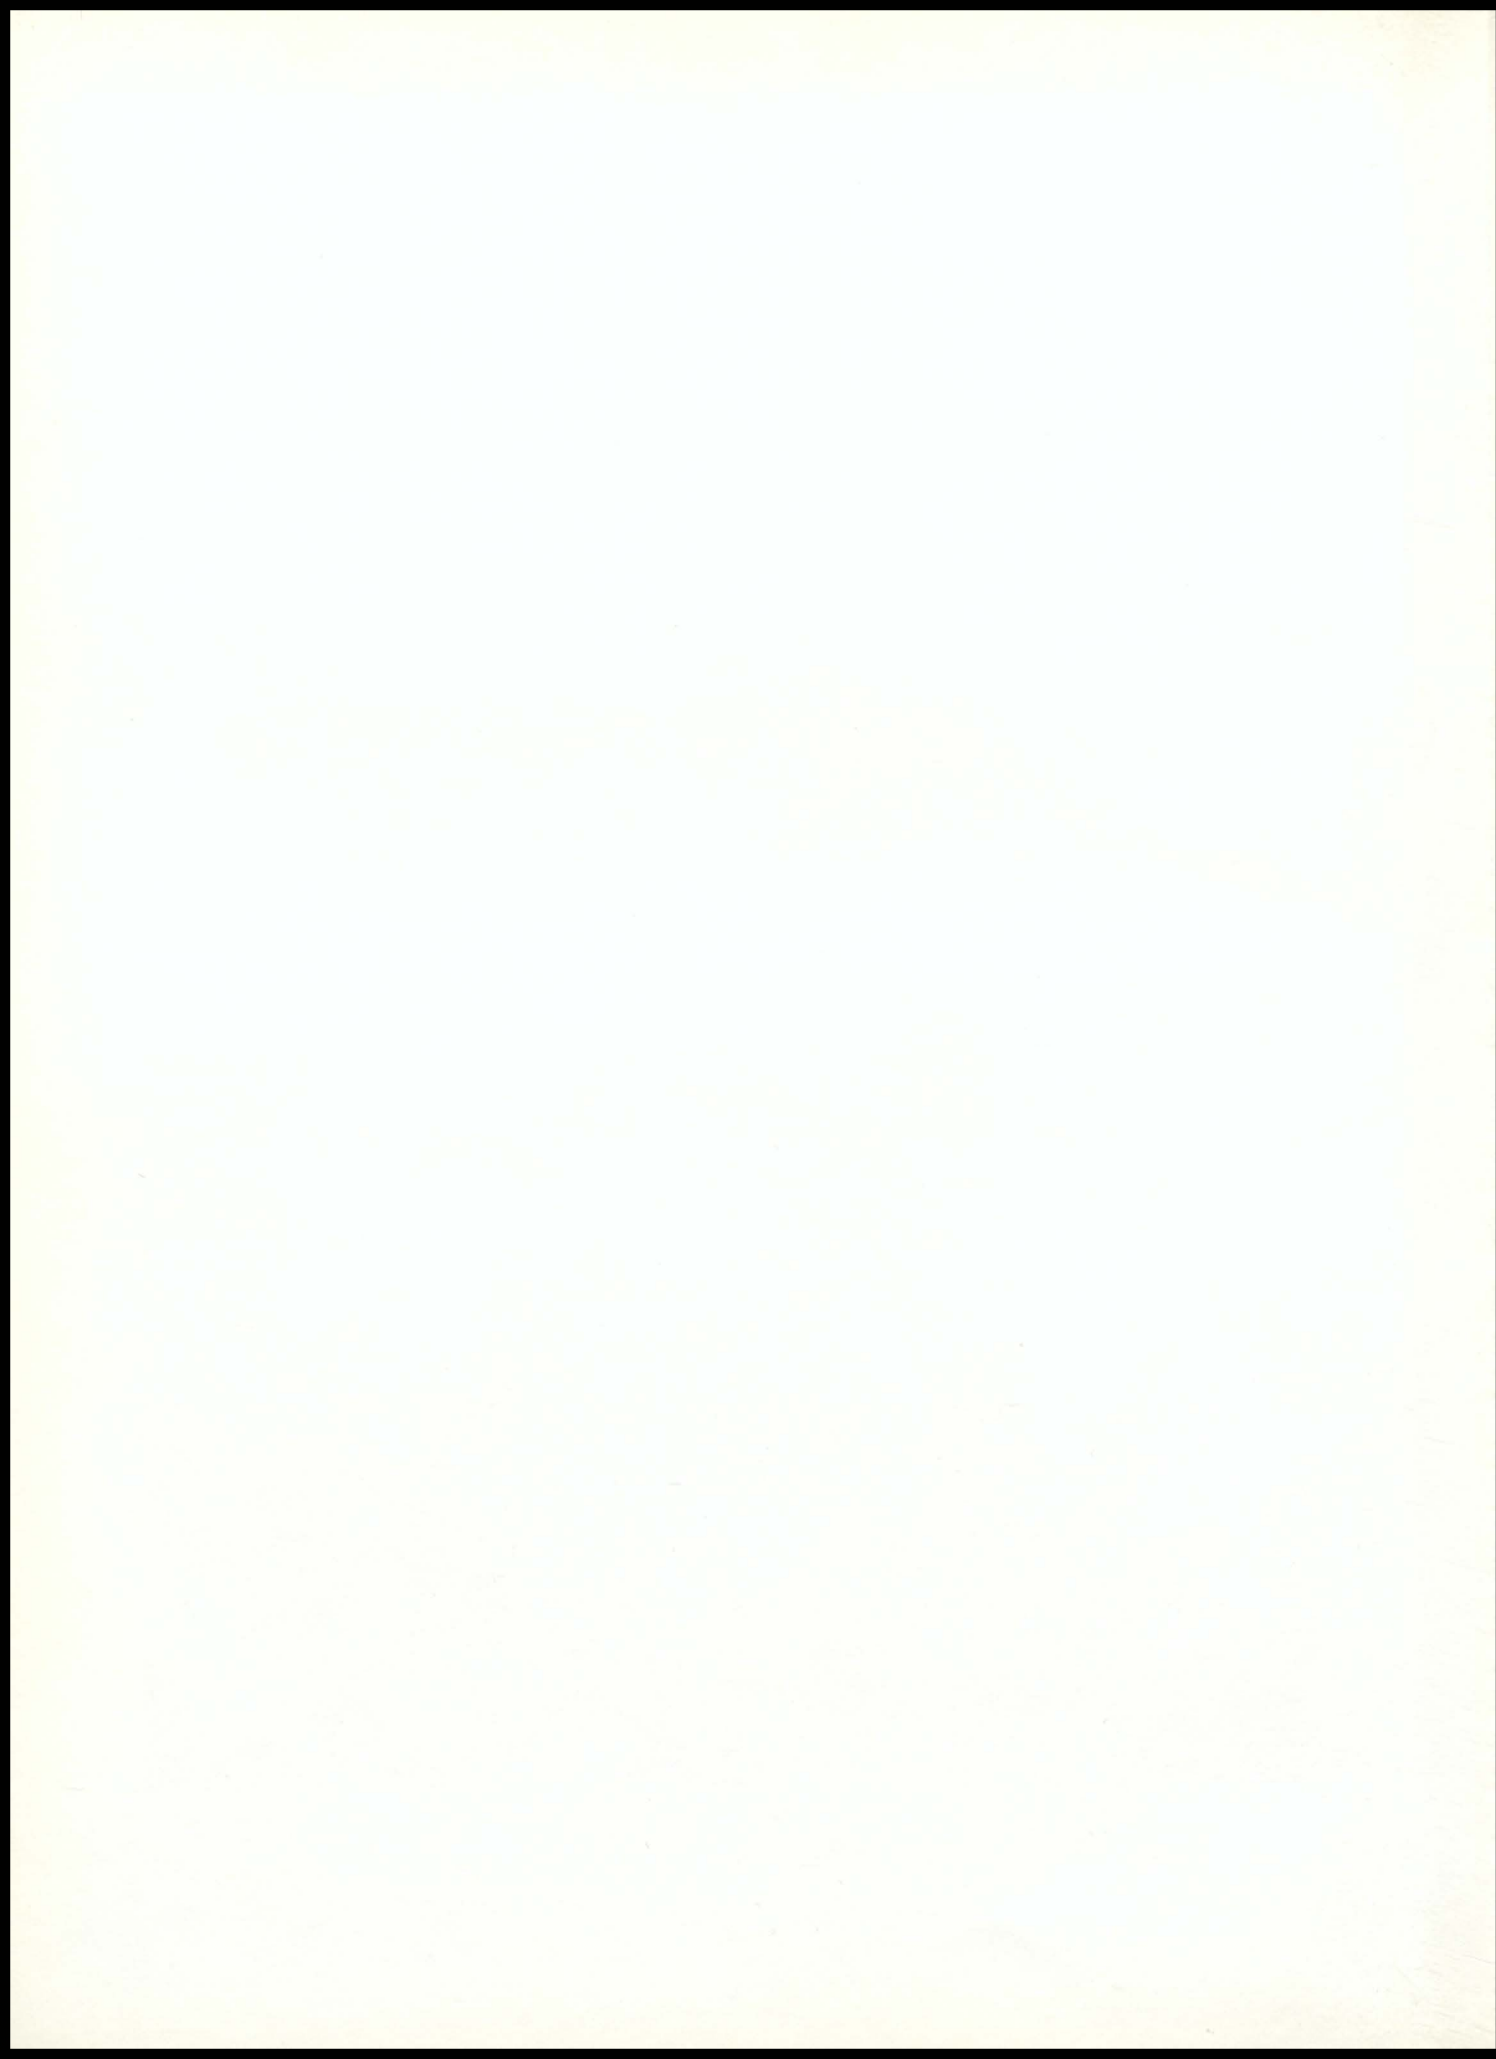

You have made this school and me proud and you have much to be proud of. As you leave Annie Wright for colleges around the country, may each of you be blessed by "fair winds and following seas."

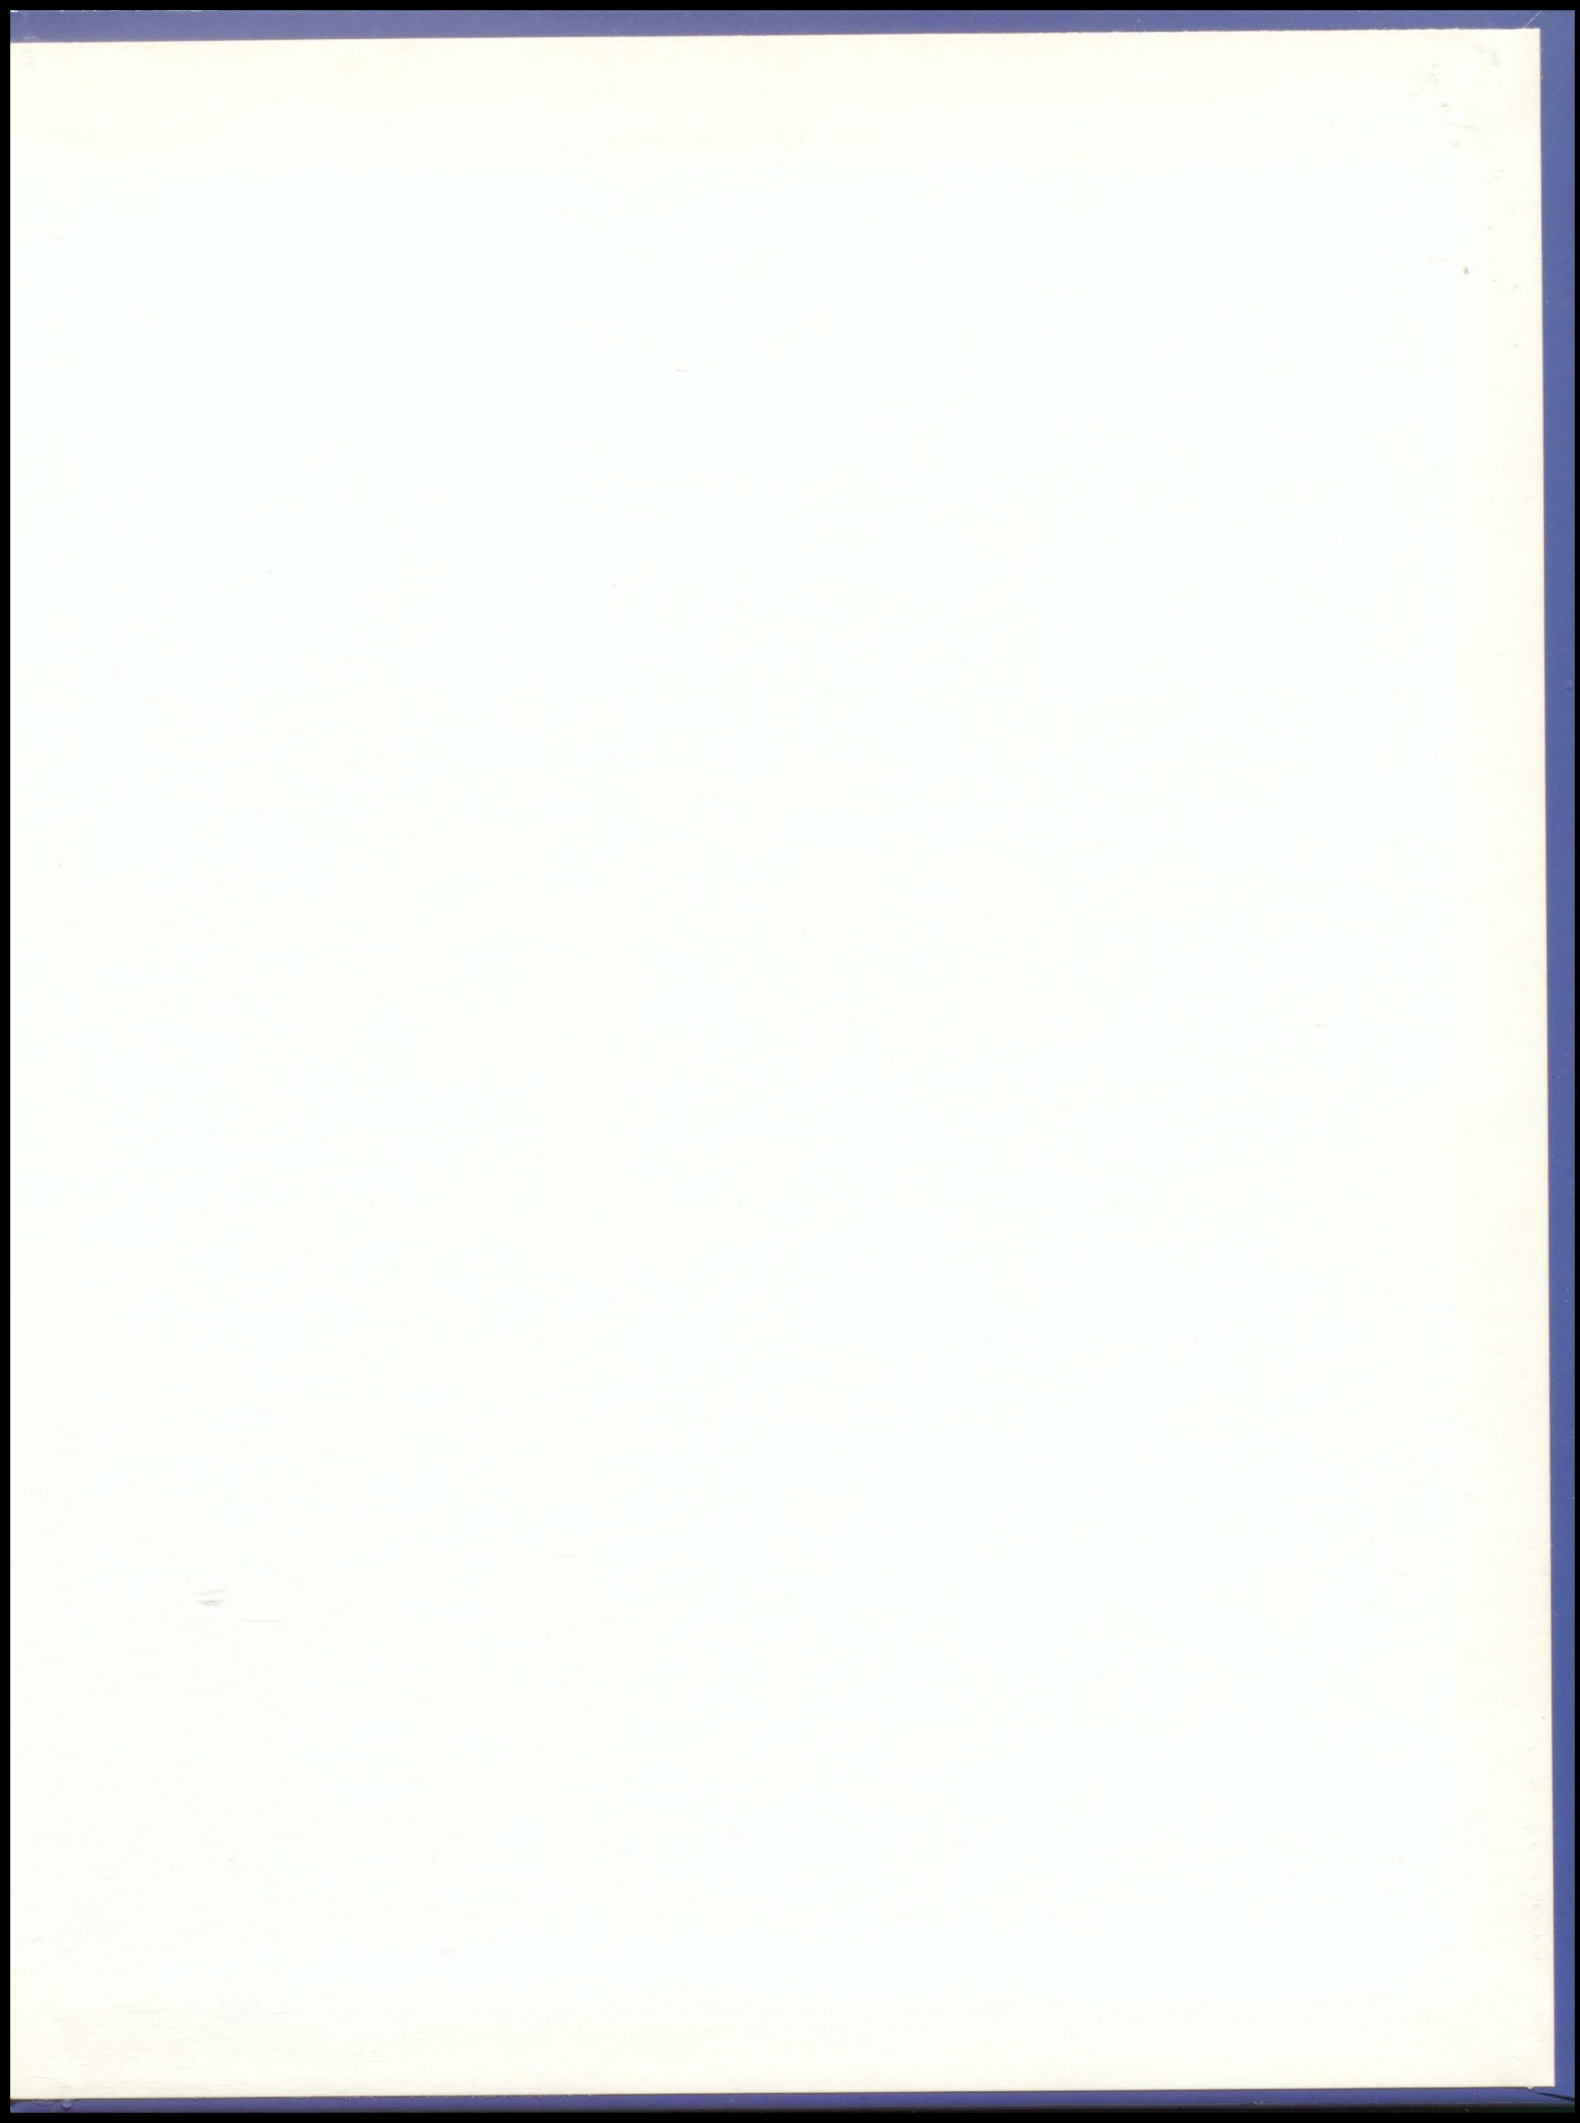

Seize the day...
